Second Purchase Order for Chinese Food Detective® test

Omega (AIM: ODX), the medical diagnostics company focused on allergy, food intolerance and infectious disease, announces that it has received a second purchase order from its new partner in China for 28,000 units of its 46-panel Food Detective® test (order value c. £400k). It is anticipated that this order will be supplied by early November 2019. This order is in addition to the first order for 20,000 units (order value c. £290k) announced on 16 August 2019 and supports our partner's plan to commercialise early in 2020.

Colin King, CEO of the Company, said: "I am delighted that we have received a second purchase order for our new Chinese Food Detective® test as this demonstrates the exciting potential in this market. As a result of the work undertaken by our partner and our internal development team, our Chinese strategy continues to deliver ahead of the original timeline."
